

To get rid of matts, etc, in clothes, it may be sufficient to subject them to a burst in a microwave oven. Needs trial to determine if harmful effects on clothes.

78-7-17

Is man-made broadcast

power (radio) intense enough to drive anything useful (power density of device; shrink or shrink). Or how about water broadcast power (esp. infra-red?)

84-7-20

Piston / Hydraulic lifts for efficiency & safety

78-7-13

Gravity waves - could they or are they modulated by the presence of particular elements? Could they be used for geoprobing?

(1) Thermocouple
(2) Counter-rotating arm

Power for satellite from -

1984-7-21

HAIR TRANSPLANTS

1986 June 23

Hair transplants from donors (normally head) would be clearly feasible but overcoming the rejection problems would probably not be worth while. Transplants from elsewhere on the subject are obviously done but the limitations in the source material available with limit use. How about developing culture techniques to culture up hair follicles all for mass transplants? Pointers to success in this might be found from studies on diseases which produce hairiness.